Druggists Short And Haynes Say They Do Not Charge Anything for Vinol Unless It Gives Satisfactory Results.

When asked by a reporter of the News how he could make such a broad offer in regard to any medicine, a member of the above firm replied:

If Vinol were a patent or secret preparation it would be another thing, but it is not, everything it contains is named on the label.

Vinol is simply the up-to-date form of administering cod liver oil, which for centuries has been recognized as the grandest of all food and strength giving foods for weak human strength and vitality, and during the last five years we have seen it produce such grand results that we are now willing to back it with any kind of a guarantee.

In Vinol we have simply done away with the useless, cloying oil, and have given to the people all the beneficial, body-building elements of cod liver oil in a highly concentrated and deliciously palatable form, and we have never sold in our store a medicine of more nutritive and strength-giving value than Vinol, and if the people of Cloverport only realized its value we would not have clerks enough in our store to supply the demand for it. In a natural manner Vinol tones up the digestive organs, makes rich red blood and creates strength. We can only ask the people of Cloverport to try it on our guarantee. Short and Haynes, Druggists.

Distribution of Seeds

The annual distribution of vegetable and flower seeds by the Department of Agriculture will begin on December 1, and before planting time it is expected the entire amount, aggregating 38,000,000 packages, will be in the hands of people in all sections of the country. Congress for the past several years has appropriated $250,000 for this purpose, but a portion of the amount is used for foreign experiment work and other kindred matters.

Nature needs only a Little Early Riser and then to keep the bowels clear, liver active, and the system free from bile, headaches, constipation, etc. The famous little pills "Early Riser" are pleasant in effect and perfection. They never gripe or but tones and strengthen the bowels and kidneys. Sold by all Druggists.

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Healthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

As the blood in your body passes through your kidneys every three minutes, it is purified. The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste and impurities in the blood. If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work. Pains, aches and rheumatism are the result of impure blood. Kidney trouble causes quick or uneasy heart beats, makes one feel as though one had heart trouble, because the kidneys are connected with the heart by blood vessels. Kidney trouble is to be traced to the kidneys. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People is a modern scientific preparation that nearly cures constitutional diseases having their origin in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake in trying Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The mild and extraordinary effect of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the great kidney remedy is well known. It stands the highest for its cures of the most distressing cases.

It is sold on its merits. It is a one-dollar bottle. You may have a trial bottle by mail. Write to Dr. Williams, Pink Pills for Pale People, 100 North Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill.

EDUCATIONAL.

VALUE OF EDUCATION.

The average educated man gets a salary of $1,000 a year. He works forty years, making a total of $40,000 in a lifetime. The average day laborer gets $1.50 a day, 300 days a year, or $450 a year. In forty years he earns $18,000. The difference between the two is $22,000, or an equivalent value of an education. To acquire this earning capacity requires twelve years at schools of 280 days each, or 336 days. Divide $22,000 by 2,160, and it is found that each day at school was a little more than $10 to the pupil—Selected.

EDUCATION AND PROSPERITY.

"An ignorant people not only is, but must be, a poor people. They must be destitute of sagacity and providence, and, of course, of competence and comfort. The proof of this does not depend upon the lessons of history, but on the constitution of nature. No richness of climate, no spontaneous productiveness of soil, no facilities for commerce, no stores of gold or of diamonds, can confer, even worldly prosperity upon an uneducated nation. Such a nation cannot create wealth of itself, and whatever riches may be showered upon it will run to waste. Within the last four centuries the people of Spain have enjoyed as much silver and gold as all the other nations of Europe put together. Yet, at the present time, the poor indeed is the people who have more than they. The nation which has produced more of the raw material and manufactured from it more fine linen than all contemporary nations, is today the most ragged and squalid in Christendom."—Horace Mann.

"The blind see, the deaf hear, the lame walk," is the best illustration of this subject by the master hand. No page of history will ever shine so bright as this diamond will not lend it lustre.

All are blind to that which they cannot hear, and here to all they cannot attain.

The holy comes to the pink of perfection by using for its growth every drop of dew, every breath of air and every shaft of light that comes. It is an example of shrewdness in time. The splendor and glory of Solomon could not match it. There is as much life in a dark, tangled, chaotic jungle as there is in a modern city. The life in the jungle is blind, deaf, lame; in the city it is blind, deaf, lame. The same in kind, but different in degree.

Seeing, hearing, walking, is life "more abundantly." Death is the cutting of every wire that communicates with the central office of life. One dies, eye, dull ear, lame foot, are just so many wires down. When they are all down, the old falls with a dull, dull thud upon the coffin lid.

True education is the work of true educators. They teach how to "make it life to live"—not how to turn stones into bread. Culture and intelligence must crumble into dust, but such men shall live forever.

"These shall resist the empire of decay. When time is over, and worlds have passed away: Cold in the dust the perished heart may lie."

But that which warmed it once can never die."

There are in Kentucky today a thousand schools without teachers; there are thousands of schools being taught by untrained teachers, and there are hundreds of thousands of children growing up in ignorance and vice without attending any school whatever. The crying need of our state today is a sufficient corps of Normally Trained Teachers. At present almost any person of good moral character and a certificate may be put in charge of the training of the children, although he would not be considered competent to train a bird-crook or a colt. To train these valuable animals requires special training and a practical knowledge of their nature and characteristics, as well as of the methods best adapted to their development and training. Without this knowledge upon the part of the trainer, a valuable dog or colt may be ruined. Of course the same thing may happen to the child in the hands of an untrained teacher, but it must be remembered that there is a vast difference between a fine English Pointer or a Thoroughbred Kentucky Hound and a mere child.

How long will the pride of Kentuckians remain dormant in the matter of Education? How long will we allow the mass of our growing citizens to remain deaf, dumb and blind to the best there is in life? How long will we write and read the most educational advantages from the country people, just because trained teachers cost more than untrained teachers?

FAMOUS "BILL" SKEETERS

IS HELD TO GRAND JURY.

Bootlegger of Repute is Arrested at Westview—Ran Away With Red-hot Still—Tom Lucas Also Held.

William Skeeters, known throughout the hill region of Breckenridge and Hardin counties as "Wild Bill" Skeeters and a bootlegger of repute, is in the Davies county jail. Skeeters was arrested near Westview, this county, last Thursday, by Deputy United States Marshal C. T. Nichols and taken to Owensboro, where he was tried Friday before Commissioner Lindsey. He was tried on the charge of retailing liquor without having paid the special government license and was held over to grand jury.

Tom Lucas was arrested by Marshal Nichols at Hindsville on the same charge as that against Skeeters and both men were taken to Owensboro by the officer Thursday night. Marshal Nichols drove through the county to this city, with his prisoners, and caught the 7:30 train to Owensboro. White Lucas was captured in Breckenridge county, his offense is said to have been committed in Hardin county and his final trial will take place at Louisville. He was given a preliminary hearing before Commissioner Lindsey Friday and held to the grand jury.

It is said that Skeeters is a moonshiner as well as a bootlegger. Some time ago a raid was made on a still, so revenue officers say, and Skeeters was found operating it. When the officers had him almost under their guns and thought they had him captured, he ran away from them carrying his red-hot still with him.

Skeeters surrendered to Marshal Nichols, who placed a blue ribbon on Skeeters in honor of his surrender. He says he knew that Nichols was determined to get him dead or alive and he thought it best to be taken alive.

After Permanent Organization.

Winchester, Ky., Nov. 16.—The first definite step toward the permanent organization of a State development convention was taken here today, when the Executive Committee, selected by the recent convention, adopted a subcommittee to draft a constitution and by-laws, after consultation with the Commercial Clubs of Louisville, Owensboro, Lexington, Winchester and other Kentucky cities. The constitution and by-laws adopted by this subcommittee at a meeting to be held in the near future will be reported back to the full Executive Committee and will then be presented to the next development convention for approval.

Favored by Note Parties.

Republicans and Democrats alike praise Foley's Honey and Tar for coughs, colds and all throat and lung diseases, as no other remedy can compare with it. It is safe and sure. F. T. Slater, merchant, 111 Main St., Winchester, Mass., writes: "Foley's Honey and Tar cured me of a very bad cough which I had for three months though other remedies failed to benefit me. I can highly recommend it for coughs and colds." For sale by A. R. Fisher.

A Broad Hint.

They were seated in the parlor conversing on the uncertainty of life. She: "The future is a vast, unfathomable mystery to us, isn't it?" He: "Yes, and we know is that we have got to go some time. Cured Beyond All Question.

There were cures for drunkenness in the early days of this country, and from this account in the New York Gazette of May 7, 1772, we are told of a treatment that cured one patient beyond all possible question. "On Saturday last Mr. Montany's negro man, who had misbehaved himself and was a remarkable drunkard, was sent to him, and underwent the usual discipline of the house for such offenses—viz a plentiful dose of warm water and salt to operate as an emetic and to keep him up in bed, in proportion to the constitution of the patient. Of this he took about three quarts of the one and two and a half spoonfuls of the other; also a glass of New England rum, which operated very powerfully, attended with a violent sickness which obliged him to lie down, and between 8 and 9 at night he was discovered to be dead. He died of excessive drinking, co-operating with discipline and medicine. Mr. Dobbs, the operator, was innocent of his taking off."

A Fight to the Finish.

The Owensboro Messenger very truthfully says: "Another pitched battle is at hand in the warfare between the tobacco trust and the tobacco growers. The first engagement has been won; again the enthusiastic farmer has fired a shot heard around the world, and the enemy against which they contend is beyond question, the most powerful one with which the American farmer has ever had to fight—a foe soiless as the forces which have driven the peasant of Europe down in the scale of civilization and enlightenment to be a brother to the ox."

"The American farmer has been victorious in every contest in which he has engaged—he will be victorious in this, but the fight is a bitter one and to the finish. It is the duty of every producer of a dollar's worth of wealth, whether he be a farmer or not, to give the cause his support, moral and otherwise. The farmers of Davies county, as of other tobacco growing countries, will find means sufficient to hold their tobacco until they can sell it at prices that will yield them a decent livelihood. Let no professed friend obstruct the way by his skepticism."

The soothing spray of Ely's Liquid Cream Balm, used in an atomizer, is an unparelleled relief to sufferers from Catarrh. Some of them describe it as a Godsend, and no wonder. The thick, foul discharge is dissolved and the patient breathes freely, perhaps for the first time in weeks. Liquid Cream Balm contains all the healing, purifying elements of the solid form, and it never fails to cure. Sold by all druggists for 75c, including spraying tube, or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren Street, New York.

To Reduce Insurance Rates.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 15.—State Insurance Commissioner Permitt today completed the investigation requested by Governor Beckham as to the fire insurance rates in Kentucky and the report to the executive says that by the passage of proper laws at the coming session of the general assembly quite a reduction can be secured.

There are in attendance about 2,000 members of the organization. The sessions will continue until Saturday of next week.

Governor Beckham Issues Thanksgiving Proclamation.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 17.—Gov. Beckham today issued the following Thanksgiving proclamation: "Commonwealth of Kentucky, Executive Department, Frankfort—

"Thanksgiving Proclamation, 1905. "In accordance with custom, and following the proclamation of the President of the United States, I appoint Thursday, November 30, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer throughout the Commonwealth of Kentucky."

"I request that all business be suspended upon that day, and that all of our people, with due observance of this hallowed and beautiful custom, give praise and honor to the gracious and merciful God who has so richly blessed us as a nation and as a people. Let us give thanks unto Him not alone with the usual religious ceremonies, but especially with deeds of kindness and generosity to the poor and needy among us, more expressive of gratitude and more pleasing to Him than all else we can do. In the plenitude of our country's wealth and prosperity, in the marvelous progress it has made under Christian civilization, let us remember that the Divine Teacher has told us in speaking of the Kingdom of God is at hand, that we are to be 'charity.' In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the Commonwealth to be affixed."

"Done at Frankfort this 17th day of November, 1905."

"J. C. W. BECKHAM, Governor."

"H. V. MCCABNEY, Sec. of State."

Eels in Scotland.

Although eels abound in Scotch waters and are caught in great quantities, they are not considered fit food there. No matter how plentiful and how very fine and large they may be in any district of Scotland, no Scotchman will eat one. The objection to the eel is said to be based on its serpent-like appearance and the fact that it is not overfastidious as to food. It is said to eat choice eels or the London market are taken from streams that are not conspicuously free from sewage.

THOUGHTS.

"The greed for gain and the greed for power have blinded men to the time-old distinction between right and wrong. Both among business men and at the bar are to be found advisers, counsellors and successful, who have substituted the penal code for the moral law as the standard of conduct. Right and wrong have given way to the subtle distinction between legal, not-illegal, and illegal; or better, perhaps, between honest, law-honest, and dishonest. This new triumph of mind over morals is bad enough in itself; but when, in addition, its exponents secure material gain and professional prosperity it becomes a menace to our integrity as a people."—Nicholas Murray Butler.

CHRISTMAS comes on Monday and it is just five weeks off. The Christmas buyers are already looking over the market. Are you ready, Mr. Merchant. If you are why not announce the fact and let the host of shoppers know? Get your announcements ready for the News next week.

The leaf tobacco market in Owensboro is on a boom. The buyers in that section are not taking everything in the shape of ordinary crops at $8, $8 and $2. It is said that it is the work of the trust to kill the pooling business of the farmers. A majority of the farmers, it is claimed, are selling at these prices, while some of them are refusing to sell to the trust at any price. They say that when the farmer's pool is broken prices will go back to the same old starving rate.

Wonder if any of our farmers or farmer-boys are taking advantage of the advice given them some time ago by our enterprising Commissioner of Agriculture regarding the picking and caring for their seed corn. Now is the time to do this. Pick out your best corn and hang it away in the dry where it won't freeze so it will be ready when the time comes for testing it. Just a little attention to this now will give you many a bushel of corn next fall. Good seed is the foundation for a good crop.

"BLACKBURN has his race won," says the Owensboro Messenger. We believe it. There are a whole raft of Blackburn Democrats in this county, although the county is claimed by the "Machine." The representative from this county is a Blackburn man at heart. Whether he votes for him or not remains to be seen. Dick Owen loves Blackburn, too. All the Blackburn Democrats in this county have to do is to assert their rights. If they want Blackburn, let them rise up in their might and say so.

A new company has taken hold of the Patton brick plant. They have ample cash capital to put the plant in good repair and to operate it. They are practical business men and know their business. We are glad to welcome them to our town. So is every citizen who takes any pride at all in the up-building of the business interests of the town. Give the men a hearty welcome and a word of cheer and encouragement. If they make a success, and we believe they will, it will benefit every citizen in the town. Employment to the unemployed is what this plant means to Cloverport.

The American horse is in much demand in Japan, says the consular reports from that country. This ought to make a good demand for the Kentucky horse. No better horse in the world than the Kentucky horse. Kentucky horsemen should get in touch with this paying trade, which promises to continue for a long time. Horsemen in Breckenridge county, do you catch on? What are you doing for that coat of yours? Are you giving him the attention he needs to make him a good horse and fit for any market or are you letting him run loose in the field doing the best he can for a living? He needs food, he needs shelter and he needs rubbing. And he needs to be fat and slick with head and tail up when the buyer comes around.

PETER BEST, Jr., of Lewisport, who was elected to the legislature from Hancock county, made a remarkable race for that office. He can say what few men can say who were elected at the recent election. In the first place, he says he never sought the nomination, never asked a man to vote for him or spent one dollar in the campaign; that he is under no obligations to any man or party for his election. The people nominated him and elected him and he intends to stand by the people regardless of party. As to the senatorial race, he is free to vote for whom he pleases. He says he will not cast his vote for any man who used money to influence voters in the campaign. He is in favor of putting a stop to the use of money in elections and will use his influence to have a law passed to do away with the iniquitous practice. Good for Mr. Best. He is a man after our own heart.

"Good postmasters will be retained in office," says Mr. Cortelyou, no matter if the county chairman is deposed and the rival faction gets the organization, and no matter what the Congressmen and both United States Senators say. This is right. What we want is good postmasters, and if they are not good they ought to be turned out regardless of political pulls. A good postmaster is a credit to any community. He can do more for his party by attending to his business and the business of the government, and being a real good postmaster than he can by pulling and hauling voters to the polls. His business is in his office, taking care of the mail and waiting on the hundreds of people who come to his place for their mail. A poor postmaster is about as great a curse as any community can be afflicted with. Now, Mr. Postmaster, whoever you are, or wherever you are, you had better be good and attend strictly to the business of your office, if you want to hold it.

A PROMINENT Democrat of this county told us no longer than yesterday that seventy-five Democrats out of every one hundred in this county are for Joe Blackburn.

Day after day, week after week and month after month, the record of good American business keeps up. Grain shipments from Chicago and Chicago junction points increased last week by 199,000 bushels. Flour increased 16,371 barrels over the prior week. Compared with the same week of 1904, the increases were 1,578,000 bushels of grain, 29,752 barrels of flour and 8,495 tons of provisions. Our railroads in the last fiscal year returned to the people $1,388,000,000 for operating expenses out of aggregate gross receipts of $1,977,000,000. By the end of the year our railway earnings will largely exceed the gigantic sum of two thousand millions of gold dollars. The roads also gave back to the people $628,000,000 for bond interest and dividends. Does not this mean that if railroad rates were cut by legislation instead of being governed by the immutable law of supply and demand, which ultimately fixes all rates and prices, it would simply take money out of the pockets of railroad wage-earners, railroad supplies manufacturers and their wage-earners and the investing public to no one's real benefit. What we need now more than we do the control of the railroads, is freedom from bosses, political machines, rings and the like—to prevent the wasting of those savings in reckless expenditures, personal or family, graft, riotous living and syndicated illegal profits.

CURED BY CUTICURA
AT COST OF $4.50

Miss Nellie Vander Wiele, of Lakeside, N. Y., writing under date of April 18, 1904, says: "I do wish you would publish this letter in the newspapers, so that others suffering as I have may see it and be helped. I suffered for many months with an awful skin disease, sores covering my ears, neck, and cheeks. Scabs would form and they would swell, and itch day and night. Then they would break open and bleed and matter run out. I had tried many different remedies, but none of them did me any good. I was growing worse when I tried the Cuticura Remedies. The first application helped me, and when I had used two cakes of Cuticura Soap, three boxes of Cuticura Ointment, and three bottles of Cuticura Resolvent, I was completely cured."

TORTURING, DISFIGURING Humours, Eczemas, Itchings, and Chafings Cured by Cuticura

ARNOLD KEOWN FOUND

DEAD NEAR HIS HOME.

Victoria Youth Killed by Accidental Discharge of Gun—Casualties Over State and How They Happened.

Arnold Keown, age seventeen, was found dead about 10 or 11 o'clock last Wednesday morning in a field near his home at Victoria. His discharged gun was found by his side, the contents having entered his abdomen. It is thought that the gun was accidentally discharged while he was in the act of raising it from the ground to fire.

Young Keown left home the afternoon of the day before, telling his mother that he was going out with his gun and dogs. Later she heard several shots but paid no attention to them. Keown did not return home at nightfall but his mother was not very uneasy, as she supposed he had gone to spend the night with a neighbor. When he had not returned by Wednesday morning, and nothing had been heard of him, it was suggested that he had perhaps accidentally shot himself and a searching party was organized.

The boy's body was found by Jas. Huff, it was lying near a log, in which was imbedded the blade of his pocketknife. It is thought that he had been standing on the log with the gun leaning against it, and that the gun was discharged while he was in the act of raising it to fire, perhaps at a rabbit as the shot ranged upward in his body.

Coroner Faqua was summoned to the scene of the tragedy.

Young Keown was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Keown, and was well thought of by every one.

The body was buried Thursday at the Roberts graveyard.

Nose Shot Off and Eyes Out.

Thomas Morrissey, with a party of friends, was on a hunting expedition near Ludlow, John Browning, one of the hunters, was carrying a shotgun when it was accidentally discharged. The entire charge struck Morrissey in the face, tearing his nose off and destroying his eyesight.

Dog Watches By Boy's Body.

Charles Reed, a thirteen-year-old colored boy, was found dead in a cornfield near Mr. Sterling with a hole in his breast. His shotgun was found by his side. It is supposed he had accidentally killed while hunting the day before. His dog watched by his body all night.

Hand Blown Off.

Clarence Claypool, of Paducah, had a hand blown off by the accidental discharge of a gun while hunting near Dyersburg, Tenn.

Gives Friend Assistance; Shoots Him.

While hunting quail with H. E. Stovall, near Rockwell, S. Buckner Duncan, of Bowling Green, was accidentally shot. The lead from one barrel of Stovall's gun struck Mr. Duncan's right arm between the elbow and shoulder. The accident occurred at a point when the hunters were crossing a log over a stream. Mr. Duncan preceded Mr. Stovall. The latter came near falling, and Duncan reached out with a stick to give him assistance. It is thought the trigger to Stovall's gun was struck with the stick, causing the discharge.

Shoots at Covey; Brings Down Man.

Adam Yochim, while hunting near Anchorage, whether he had gone with Mike Roer and Joe Herber, recovered the contents from Herber's gun fall in the face, and the services of a physician were necessary in order to pick out all the bullets. Herber raised his gun to shoot at a covey, and did not see Yochim on the other side of the bushes, and as a result the latter lost a tooth, had his lip punctured, his cheeks filled with shot and his arm injured.

Flashes Quail; Shoots Man.

George Thomas was walking along the road in Daviess county when he was shot down by Forest Miller, who had missed a quail, and the shot struck Thomas in the neck.

Boy Shoots Father at Front Gate.

At Owensboro, M. C. Ford was standing at his front gate when his son attempted to shoot a rabbit. The father received the contents of the discharge in his abdomen.

Counteracting The Genuine.

Foley & Co., Chicago, originated Honey and Tar as a throat and lung remedy, and on account of the great merit and popularity of Foley's Honey and Tar many imitations are offered for the genuine. Ask for Foley's Honey and Tar and refuse any substitute offered as no other preparation will give the same satisfaction. It is mildly laxative. It contains no opium or other drugs for children and delicate persons. For sale by A. R. Fisher.

Growers to Pool Cotton.

New Orleans, Nov. 15.—Following the arrival of President Harvie Jordan, the Southern Cotton Association today perfected plans for the taking of the market of 5,000,000 bales of cotton by means of a series of pledges which the farmers will sign themselves, stating their name and address and the amount of cotton they will thus hold. The cotton held will not be sold for less than 15 cents a pound. A representative of the association is to be sent into every one of the 817 cotton-producing counties of the cotton belt at once. When the pledges are signed they will be sent to the central office of the association in Atlanta. President Jordan says that half of the crop has already been sold at an average of 10 cents, and the spinners must have all the remainder. He believes that 15 cents for the remainder is a fair price and it will only average the spinners 12½ cents, while they have based all their calculations on 14 cents cotton.

In Time of Peace. In the first month of the Russian-Japan war we had a striking example of the necessity of preparation and the early advantage of those who, so to speak, "have shrouded" their roofs in dry weather. The virtue of preparation has made history and given to us our greatest men. The individual as well as the nation should be prepared for any emergency. Are you prepared to successfully combat the first "cold you take"? A cold can be cured much more quickly when treated as soon as it has been contracted and before it has become settled in the system. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is famous for its cures for colds and it would be as good as hand ready for instant use. For sale by Short & Haynes, Cloverport.

'Brains, Booze, Beauty.' Etc.

Col. Jack Chien, of Hittsburg, created something of a sensation last week by suggesting a new motto for Kentucky: "Brains, booze, beauty and bullets." Col. Chien made the suggestion at the twelfth annual meeting of the National Fox Hunters' association at Bardonia.

Do not be deceived by counterfeits when you wish Hazel Balm. This name is of E. C. DeWitt & Co. is on every box of the genuine. Piles in their own form will soon pass away if you will apply DeWitt's Witch Hazel Balm night and morning. Best for Cuts, Burns, Boils, Tetters, Eczema, etc. Sold by all Druggists.

In Loving Remembrance

Of little Hilary Smith, who died October 29, 1905. One long year has passed today. Since Hilary dear was called away. O, how sad it is to say, "We miss him more every day." O, Hilary, how I miss your face. Your voice I can not hear. I love you as I loved you when you was with mother dear. I love my head and sadly weep; I miss my Hilary dear. The good Lord knew best. In taking Hilary home to rest. His sister, Mary L. Smith.

Present Period Most Dramatic in County's History Says Folk.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 16.—Edward Rosewater, editor of the Omaha Bee and Gov. Joseph W. Folk, of Missouri, were the guests of honor at the monthly dinner here tonight of the Knife and Fork Club, Gov. Folk, in the course of his speech, said: "The next few years will be distinguished as the time in which industrial problems are settled, the reign of special privileges brought to an end, the recognition of the doctrine of equal rights fixed in national politics and in the conscience of mankind. We are in the midst of the most dramatic period in American history, the period in which the people's rights are to be defined and observed as they never have been before."

"Will it last? is the question. Will not the people soon forget and allow things to continue in the same old way? I answer no. Revolutions never go backward, and this is a revolution that has been wrought in the conscience of men."

The present movement, Gov. Folk said, did not mean the destruction, but rather the putting of the organization of political parties on a higher plane.

DRAGGING

down pains are a symptom of the most serious trouble which can attack a woman, viz: falling of the womb. With this, generally, come irregular, painful, scanty or profuse periods, wasteful, weakening drains, dreadful backache, headache, nervousness, dizziness, irritability, tired feeling, inability to walk, loss of appetite, color and beauty. The cure is that marvelous, curative extract, or natural essence, of herbs, which exerts such a wonderful strengthening influence on all female organs. Cardui relieves pain, regulates the menses, stops drains and stimulates the muscles to pull the womb up into place. It is a safe and permanent cure for all female complaints.

FITZHUGH LEE'S ESCAPE.

BULLET FROM REPRESENTATIVE JENKINS' MUSKET PLOUGHED THROUGH HIS HAT.

Thrilling Occurrence of the Civil War—Confederate Made Three Desperate Charges in Blinding Midnight Thunder Storm.

W. M. Wooster.

One warm summer evening in 1895, I sat smoking with Judge Jenkins, of Wisconsin, who is now only representing his State in Congress.

We were watching the oncoming of a heavy thunder storm, and the conversation had turned, as it often did to the time of his youth when he entered the Union army and was, by the stirring events of the war, transformed into the fearless iron-headed man that has since characterized him.

"It was just such an occasion in the summer of '62," he remarked, "that I nearly killed Fitzhugh Lee."

"We were down in Virginia, and I was in charge of an ammunition train which was on its way to McClellan's army."

We had been halted by a brief order from headquarters, and directed to remain where we were—near a little village about thirty miles south of Washington.

"No reason was given for the delay, though some of the boys said it was for the purpose of enabling an escort of cavalry to join us. Others said they guessed we had better have any further use for powder. However, we were mighty glad to go into camp, as many of the raw men were about 'bushed' by the long and hot marching, besides it gave us opportunity to forage and get better rations than hard-tack and maggoty bacon—33 levelly that it followed us around camp."

"We pitched our tents in an open field, a short distance to the east of a high road which stretched away toward home. About a quarter of a mile to the south was a thick piece of timber."

The Old Pic Woman.

"The third day we were in camp a woman came through selling pies. We thought nothing of her visit, other than that her pie was home-made and tasted awfully good."

"It was just such a day as this," continued the Judge, "and in the afternoon the heat became very oppressive. As the evening wore on we observed thunder-heads piling up in the southwest, and boys joked that we would have a break in the hot spell."

"I became uneasy as the night wore on, and walked about the camp watching the flashes of distant lightning and the dark masses of drifting clouds which seemed to be fanning us on the north."

"We'll take him if it's a Johnnie." "We stepped into the deeper shadows, and soon a mounted Confederate officer emerged from the dark bend of the road, and was silhouetted against the sky. In a moment or two he reached the point commanding a view of our camp, drew rein and sat not fifty feet away, peering toward us."

"I saw the officer's hat twitch sharply as the heavy bullet tore through it. For an instant he swayed as though hit, then sprang up the road before I could reload. The quick blow of the picket had saved his life."

"With the sound of his galloping horse, we heard shots on the north, and soon afterwards our pickets were driven in by a force of the enemy's cavalry."

"The camp was hurriedly abandoned, and our boys were forced to the attack. Bayonets were fixed to their rifles, and were ordered to reserve their fire until the horses were almost on top of us. In a few minutes it broke over us in all its fury, and as it did so the enemy charged, yelling like devils, and came, riding as mad, and led by the very officer I had so narrowly missed. I recognized him instantly."

THE POWER OF SONG.

AN INCIDENT OF LIFE IN LIBBY PRISON DURING THE CIVIL WAR.

How the Prisoners Sang the "Star Spangled Banner," and There was Cheering in the Streets of Richmond.

Taken prisoner while in charge of the rear guard, on Stoneman's first raid, near Richmond, Va., relates an old captain of the cavalry, and after various adventures, I, with 2,000 of the prisoners taken at Chancellorsville, was sent to Libby prison. The large excess of prisoners on the Confederate side procured us, most fortunately, an exchange in a very short time, and within a month or so I participated in another raid under Colonel Spear of the 11th Pennsylvania Cavalry over the same ground where I had been lately led a prisoner of war.

We had passed one Sunday in Libby—33 officers confined to an upmost story. About the middle of that afternoon I chanced to look around the room. A half dozen parties were playing cards, many were sleeping, several were lying on the floor pretty sick, while one squad of a dozen or more had organized a prayer meeting. Not being a saint and perhaps not much of a sinner, I was simply a "looker on in Venice." The leader was a captain of a Massachusetts regiment. The meeting was evidently dragging, the great heat and perhaps hunger and our position, proving conducive to much thanksgiving.

"The National Anthem. Suddenly the captain started up, and taking his place near the centre of the room, exclaimed in a voice loud enough to attract immediate attention, 'Let us all sing "The Star Spangled Banner," and commenced in an exceptionally fine baritone. "Oh, say, can you see?"

Cards were dashed aside, the sleepers awoke, the sick leaped to their feet, and like magic every one of the entire 33 officers crowded to the centre, singing with the greatest enthusiasm. At least two dozen of the men had fine voices, and never did the grand old words seem so like a mighty anthem.

"Waved the Old Flag. Londer and londer swelled the sound until the chorus of the last verse was reached, when a member of a New York City regiment, a regular Tammany thoroughbred, reached his hand in his breast and produced a small silk flag, which he had, in some way, concealed when searched by the guards on entering, and with a wild shout waved it to and fro. Again and again was the chorus repeated, and then suddenly the captain charged "To the Army and Navy Forever!" "Three cheers for the old flag!"

Cheers for the Red, White and Blue." Veritable cheers they were. Tears streamed down the veterans' cheeks, the boys in the room below took up the shouts, and three times "three" were given.

Hearing some cheering on the outside, I moved cautiously near the window—it was dangerous to go too near—and saw all the guards in line with their muskets pointed toward the building, but, massed up and down the streets, were hundreds upon hundreds of people, four-fifths of them women, clapping their hands and waving their handkerchiefs, showing by their approval a most remarkable tribute to the power of song, and that love for old glory still held a wary place in their hearts and memories.

"Some Great Discoveries. Almost every day one of the professors of the University of Chicago, the financial machinery of which is aided by John D. Rockefeller, breaks into print with some new discovery. They keep the world started and wondering."

"During the past few years, for instance, the following epoch-making discoveries, among a host of others, have been listed by a Buffalo newspaper as Chicago University discoveries: That kissing causes lockjaw. That a dog never follows an uneducated man. That the Pennsylvanians are turning into Indians. That Ireland was once a lake. That primitive man had a gizzard. That music is an antidote. That Adam caught fish with a club. That love is a disease of the Medulla oblongata. That a cabbage contains more nourishment than twelve eggs. That Boccaccio was a Swede."

"Christy Mathewson. The star pitcher of the New York "Giants"—the rival team upon whom turns the world's championship. In accordance with an agreement made before the playing of the world's championship series, 60 per cent. of the gate receipts from the first four games played was divided among the players, 75 per cent. of this going to the winners, the New York Giants, and the remaining 25 per cent. to the losers, the Athletics. This netted each individual on the former team nearly $1,200 and approximately $500 to each of the latter. In addition to this the management of the Philadelphia aggregation has divided among its players 50 per cent. of the gate receipts—nearly $9,000—as a reward for winning the pennant in the American League."

"Fortunes for Ball Players. Friendly Rivalry in the Two Great Leagues. The great baseball battle which occurred a short time ago between the pennant winners of the National and American Leagues for the season's playing rights to mind that it was but a few years ago that these two rival baseball associations were clashing tooth and nail in a deadly war of extermination and survival. It was then that the American League, under the leadership of Ban Johnson, made inroads into the ranks of the National League, capturing its star players and enlisting them in its cause through a rainbow of big salaries. Rival teams were placed in Chicago, St. Louis, Boston, New York and Philadelphia and princely salaries offered to the players of ability. There were, of course, suits at law, and injunctions were sought restraining the contract jumpers. One particularly notable case is remembered in the case of Lajoie, Delahanty, Wolverton, Orth and Townsend, one-time members of the Philadelphia Nationals, who jumped to the rival team in that city. When injunctions were secured preventing their playing in the Quaker town, they were transferred to the Cleveland and Washington teams."

Now all is peace and harmony between the two organizations; they have adopted a set of rules regulating the players in each, and schedules are prepared each spring which will provide for as few conflicting dates as possible. New York & Philadelphia in October were the scenes of notable battles for supremacy between the teams representing these cities, that of New York having won the laurel in the National and Philadelphia's that in the American League.

That a dog never follows an uneducated man. That the Pennsylvanians are turning into Indians. That Ireland was once a lake. That primitive man had a gizzard. That music is an antidote. That Adam caught fish with a club. That love is a disease of the Medulla oblongata. That a cabbage contains more nourishment than twelve eggs. That Boccaccio was a Swede."

OUT OF THE JAWS OF DEATH

It mattered not that the runaway was second hand, and purchased at auction, though at a ridiculously low price. It mattered not that I had but nine-horse power while Fred Wilson, in his fine touring car, had forty. I was as happy as a king, for my new possession set aside, to some extent, at least, Fred's advantage over me in the attack upon Miss Stoddard's heart. He had been taking her riding on the Beach Drive, and I had ground my teeth with futile jealousy, until along came my wonderful opportunity. I bought the machine, though it was really beyond my means. I simply couldn't help it. When a man is in love, you know, he is all kinds of a fool.

And didn't my breast swell with pride when I whirled up to Alice's house that evening, the second after my purchase, to take her in the moonlight along that magnificent five-mile stretch of perfect road? I had made up my mind to tell her that night all that had been in my heart for so many apprehensive hours—that I loved her, that I wanted her for my very own—in fact, that she was the only girl in all the world for me.

Oh, it is glorious to sit by the girl you love and spin through the night in a silent, smooching car. I drank in the full joy of it. A dozen times I was on the point of speaking. I had but mechanically steered at the steering, endeavoring to be able to manage the machine with one hand, in order to take the other for Alice's waist. I pictured it all out—how she would listen in silence, then look at me with sparkling eyes and let her pretty head fall on my shoulder; and how I would then put my arm around her, very tenderly, and draw her close and kiss her. But it did not turn out that way at

I was going to say "precious head" and then I saw her suddenly dry and my heart made violent leaps. It was a strange, sick, half-frightened, half-dreaded sort of back-slash. I took courage and found my tongue. "Alice," I said gently, placing my disengaged hand on her own, "I want to tell you something that has—has been—has been on my mind for some time."

I think she understood what was coming, but I got no further. In the darkness, at the roadside, a huge black bulk loomed, like an enormous dog. A sudden terror shot through me. The machine swerved sharply, and I was compelled to use both hands to steady it. I turned up the beam of the headlights, and a glance looked behind. A glance was enough. The bulk had moved out from the road and was directly behind us. What could it be? A dog? A—my heart sank. I thought of the chorus of unusual howls and roars heard shortly before. I looked back again. There was no doubt about it. Behind us, loomed easily and tall, a white lion. I recognized the great shaggy head. I had escaped from the Zoo, and was probably mad with fright from the attempts of the keepers to capture it.

A little faster, and still a little faster, I did not want to turn on full speed at once. The lion was just as close as before, bounding like a giant cat, as easily and as quietly as a phantom.

But you can not keep a secret from a woman. Alice turned her eyes to made a prodigious leap, and had we been a trifle less swift would have landed on top of us. But we shot under him, and as he descended one great paw swept over the seatback and wiped off half of the leather covering. God, those claws and their power. Another jump and we would be done for.

The automobile in front was now almost upon us. The deep-toned roar of a warning horn at that instant I decided on a new course. We were approaching a road crossing, taking the hubbly finally I swerved sharp across the track, just grazing the big car in front, and darted down the side road. But the road was not as I had hoped. The next moment we crashed into the bushes at the side of the road and came to a short stop in the midst of a dense clump of laurel. I crouched and awaited the descent of the lion. I could feel him in the air behind me. I waited with a prayer on my lips.

I stood I heard confusion out on the Wood Road. There were loud voices. The machine was at a stop, for I could see the lights through the trees. Alice was in a dead faint, and seeing that I could not help her at that moment and that the beast had disappeared I jumped out and ran to the roadside. There stood Fred Wilson's big touring car, with the front smashed in; there stood Fred and his three companions; and there, in the middle of the road, lay the lion. My plan was successful. Following us closely he had no time to dodge the heavy car. He met it head on. There could be only one result.

My runaway was not hurt, and after a time with Alice beside us, recovered, though tremulous, we rolled slowly home. The supper was abandoned. But in the quiet of Alice's dainty parlor, with no fear of pursuers or intruders, I went on with my interrupted story. And later, with both arms around her, and her dear face very close to mine, we planned our honeymoon.

Delightful—For the Guests.

There were many visitors that summer at Alice's suburban home. He was a subordinate clerk during the month of September of a hundred dollars, but of course the guests were not cognizant of the extent of his income, nor did that question appear to enter their minds.

He was anxious to do everything in reason to make life in the country endurable to his wife who hated house-keeping under the best of circumstances, especially in the country, while the breath of fresh air and communion with nature were giving him satisfaction from exhaustive daily brain work, by which the current funds were supplied.

So he made his guests welcome in every way, giving up his room at times, changing his former easy habits, but not his best clothes, as he had been his when he reached home at evening returning company calls and thereby neglecting necessary work on his place, at other times, of course, he drove now and then, to the house, the greatly increased cost of the fuel, the milk bill, the butcher's bill, the bill for fuel and the general wastage, all of which would have been of his summer friends, a man with a large income, but were to him very disheartening as weeks passed by and the guests made no sign of departure.

But all things must come to an end, and as the autumn arrived they said, "But in the city, we surely must return to the city. We have said months ago that we expected to remain weeks."

And so they gave their host a formal handshake, and a perfunctory good bye, while they kissed and embraced their hostess and then left.

"Never have we been more charmingly entertained; you have done everything in your power to make this summer long to be remembered."

And the poor clerk returned to his desk at work, the house resumed its normal condition, but as each pay day rolled around he added his debts and his credits, only to find that extra hundred dollars persistently remaining on the ledger.

Whether it is ample compensation for him to hear, when he occasionally meets one of his summer friends, "the charming hospitality shown by his wife," is known only to himself. Doubtless so, since husband and wife are one.

Uncomfortable English Hotels.

W. D. Howells, in Harper's.

With the aid of the two candles which I lit, I discovered the grate in the wall near the head of the bed, and on examining it closely I perceived that there was a fire in it. The grate would have held quite a double handful of coal if carefully put on; the fire which seemed to be burning so feebly had yet the weary energy to draw all the warmth of the chamber up the chimney, and I stood shivering in the temperature of a subterranean dungeon. The place instantly gave evidence of being haunted, and the testimony of my nerves on this point was corroborated by the spectral play of the firelight on the ceiling when I blew out my candles. In the middle of the night I woke to the sense of something creeping about with a rustling noise over the floor. I selected the hypothesis of my bed curtain falling into place, though I remembered putting it back that I might have light to read myself drowsy. I knew at once that it was a ghost walking the night, and walking hard. Suddenly it ceased, and I knew why. It had been frozen out.

Has Many Diseases.

In Bellevue Hospital, in New York, there is a man who should be the object of everyone's sympathy. His name is Job Keeley, and his occupation is that of a painter. A short time ago he fell from a low scaffold and sustained such injuries as necessitated being taken to the hospital for treatment. There the surgeon found that he had a slight fracture of the base of the skull. After a further examination it was found that he had tuberculosis of the lungs complicated with bronchitis. His occupation as a painter had given him painter's colic. He is not a young man and his age had hardened his arteries, arteriosclerosis, also "old man's eyes"—presbyopia—the opposite of nearsightedness; he also has water on the brain and his skin is puffed up by air which has escaped under it.

QUEER DANISH SITUATION.

European and Diplomatic Gossip.

The late Lord Stanley, of Alderley, England, entertained absolutely fantastic hatred towards everything American. Some few years ago the American Society in London was holding its annual dinner on Independence Day, and invited Lord Stanley to the feast. His reply, typical of his dislike of everything American, was "Lord Stanley presents his compliments to the secretary of the American Society, but can not conceive why he should have been asked to a banquet to celebrate an untimely rebellion."

Countess Ralven Lovstrand, wife of the Danish Minister for Foreign Affairs, is American born, as is her mother, wife of the Danish Minister at Berlin. By the bye so much has been said about the personal popularity of King Christian of Denmark, that most people will probably be surprised to learn that for twenty years, until not many months ago, there has been a deadlock between the veteran monarch and the national legislature. The Liberals have continuously held a majority in the KING CHRISTIAN OF DENMARK.

Folkething, the Danish House of Commons, but the King has insisted on choosing his cabinet ministers from the other party, the Conservatives.

The representatives of the minority have conducted the routine business of the government, but whenever they have had to ask the Folkething for special funds, that body, which controls the official purse, has thwarted them. The royal residence in Copenhagen, the old palace of Christiansburg, was destroyed by fire in 1884, and the feeling between the Crown and the legislature had been so bitter that money had never been appropriated to restore it. For almost twenty years King Christian lived in comparative squalor and shabby quarters at the Amalienborg palace until finally the long-standing dispute was ended by the King's recognition of the majority party.

It may not be surprising that the esteem of William Waldorf Astor should claim for the first American Astor—and incidentally, of course, for the second—a distinguished lineage. The distinguished ancestor to whom the title of "Baron Astor" was granted by the Emperor of Austria, a Spanish grandee of the eleventh century, who settled in France, his successors—a long line of signers and magnates—changed their name to Astor. At the revolution of the Edict of Nantes, Jean Jacques d'Astorg, who was a Huguenot, fled across the Rhine, and settled in Jacob Astor, the Waldorf, butcher, was his grandson. This information will, no doubt, be of interest to American antiquarians. It is well known that John Jacob Astor came to this country in 1770, and settled in the village of Waldburg in Baden. His descendant of the fourth generation, who is a "peasant," but a matter of fact he was the son of the village butcher, and began his career by working in his father's shop—a fact which it is not recorded that he ever sought to conceal.

King Leopold of Belgium has conferred upon Mrs. Ellen M. Herndon, president of the Women's Auxiliary Congress of the World's Columbian Exposition, the honor of knighthood. It is believed that Mrs. Herndon is the only woman in this country who has received this decoration. She was at one time national president of the Federation of Women's Clubs, and is prominently known as the wife of Charles Herndon, Belgian Consul in Chicago. The Order of Leopold was founded in 1832 by Leopold I; there are five classes.

In selecting a wife, Serge de Witte the great Russian statesman, chose a Jewess, one of the race which has been treated so cruelly in his country. Mme. de Witte was formerly the wife of a subordinate official, but she secured a divorce and has been very happy in her second marriage. She is the wife of a Russian nobleman, and has been received at court. She also has been ignored by the leading society of St. Petersburg, notwithstanding the high positions her husband has held.

all. It seldom does turn out just as you plan it.

We will go clear to the end of the Beach Drive," I said, as we slipped away down Main street and turned into the Boulevard. "Then we will come back by the Wood Road, skirting the Zoo and ending up at Alice's place for a little supper. How will you like that? And she smiled up at me so appreciatively that I was perfectly sure, for full half a minute, that she was just as much in love with me as I was with her. It was so open on the Drive, and there was such a stream of automobiles and carriages that I felt that speaking to her of my secret. It would be better in the seclusion of the Wood Road. So we talked generally, and looked out over the water at the vessels in the Sound, and admired the beauty of the glorious moonlight on the dancing waves. Then, at the end of the beautiful path along the water we turned abruptly and entered the quiet and seclusion of the great pine woods. The road was rather narrow here, and wound intricately through the forest, for several miles, emerging upon a broad plaza at the front entrance to the Zoo. This road was not much frequented at night, and I felt that I would have ample opportunity to express myself. I troubled no further. The time was very near. I must speak soon.

It was very quiet in the woods. At intervals we could hear faintly the baying and howling of the animals in the Zoo. Occasionally an elephant trumpeted, or a jaguar screamed. We were used to these sounds, but Alice was just a little frightened when there came a perfect babel of sounds from the enclosure. She drew closer to me, and I, relying on my skill, took my left hand from the steering bar and slipped it gently behind her. Though she dared not take the liberty of embracing her, she looked up at me in alarm. "Suppose one of those terrible beasts should get out and come after us?" she asked, timidly. I laughed at her suggestion. "It would be easy to run away with this machine," I said. "And anyhow, you don't suppose I would let anything harm a single hair of your, your—"

the rear, then with a piercing shriek three both arms around me and clutched me in a most delicious embrace, though I would willingly have severed the occasion.

"Yes, my dear," I said quietly. "I know all about it. I think we can run away from him, though."

I touched the speed lever again. This was the last notch. We were at our fastest, and I was sure that we were as fast as any possibility of help. The machine was now running steadily with straight road for half a mile, and I let my left arm steal around Alice's waist and held her in protecting clasp. I thought no more about love and soft declarations. I knew only that here was the sweetest girl in the world, in imminent danger of being torn to shreds by a ferocious lion, and that only a miracle, including steady hand and head on my part, would save her from a ghost of a chance. I stole another glance behind. Not twenty yards separated us from that relentless, blood-thirsty, powerful animal. Alice had sunk into a heap on my lap. I leaned forward, hoping to reduce the wind pressure and add to our speed, and prayed to heaven for

On and on we went. What if we should have hit the laborer who lay on the ground? The thought was heart-rending. Even at our speed the lion was gaining on us. He was only ten yards behind. He had increased his speed with mine, making twenty feet at a leap. The mounting part of the machine was just as close as before, except now and then a low grumbling growl, as the lion was put in to obtain a supper.

Far ahead I saw three lights set in the shape of a triangle. The top light was brilliant and threw its rays directly into my eyes. Thank God, I had an automobile, approaching from the opposite direction. I opened my mouth and made a dash for it. The machine would go whizzing by, and we would be no better off than before. I looked back and almost fell into the road, for right in the air behind me appeared the great lion, his eyes, the fangs, the claws, the massive-clawed feet of the lion. He had

A TALK WITH SECRETARY WILSON.

GUY ELLIOTT MITCHELL

Secretary Wilson, as the official head of the great family of American farmers, views with some considerable satisfaction the abundant crops which have blessed almost every section of the country.

Co-Operation in the South.

"I have been watching the South with a great deal of interest," continued the Secretary. "They have accomplished more in effecting an organization down there to bring the cotton producer and consumer together than has been attempted with any other of our great agricultural productions. The cotton crop is a big one this year, though not by any means a record breaker. The ground under our crop is probably the largest we have ever had; our corn crop is probably a record crop and our wheat crop is one of the very largest."

"That is the order of importance of these crops!"

He should put it on his land," replied the Secretary, "now thoroughly at home; he should take it out on the land at once and not let it accumulate; haul it out and spread it on as fast as it is made. The ground will get the good of it."

"Won't the ammonia evaporate and the fertility be lost to the soil?" It will have been demonstrated by careful experiments that the hauling out of manure is the best method. It will follow into the grass roots, and will not lose the ammonia because ammonia is produced by bacteria and these bacteria flourish only under three conditions, moisture, heat and oxygen. There are three classes of bacteria which must operate upon manure before it is available for plant food. The ammonia bacteria attack it first; it is then converted by other bacteria into nitrates, and, lastly, by still other bacteria, into nitrites when the roots of the plant can then take it up as food.

More Than Two Thirds of the Living

It is an oft repeated argument, in every farm journal that more attention should be given to the garden; that fully two-thirds of the living for the farmer's family, however large, can be produced from a good garden,

When it comes to canning and preserving, there is little real comparison between the home canned product and bought goods. It time is considered as money, canned tomatoes can be bought probably cheaper than they can be grown and canned at home. But how about the results? If the farmer's wife should go through the ordinary canning establishment she would probably conclude to do every speck of her own can-ing hereafter and avoid setting on her table sour green fruit, artificially colored and sweetened with coal tar products.

With the supposed degeneration of the individual farm garden, it is interesting to note that the professional market garden, as an industry, has tremendously increased.

The farm gardens, "market gardens" and truck gardens" of today are the producers of a multitude of "miscellaneous vegetables" almost unknown fifty years ago. In the census

Why a New Ballot is Needed.

Under the above head the New York Sun has an editorial which is applicable to this state as well as New York. The editorial in question is as follows:

"New York needs a new ballot because under the present law her citizens are not placed on an equal footing in the voting booth. For the voter who from fear, desire, or habit want to vote a straight ticket the vote is made smooth and the task easy. For equally reputable citizens who wish to vote split tickets the road is rough and discouraging. The ballot now in use is so constructed as to make misstatements and errors easy. It is so big that to unfold it is a complicated work. To refold it properly requires considerable skill. There are many ways open for a voter to indicate his ballot. He may tear it or make a mark outside a voting space, or otherwise defeat it without intention, but with the effect of disfranchisement."

All that the advocates of a new ballot ask is that the ballot be made as simple as possible, that the opportunity for mistake and errors be made as few as possible, and that independent and partisan be put on the same footing when they go to the polls. This could be accomplished by abolishing the party voting circles, arranging all the candidates for each office in alphabetical order under the title of the office, and requiring each voter to mark the candidate of his choice for every office except, perhaps, the candidates for Electors of President and Vice-President, for each group of whom one mark might be made. All spaces on the ballot except the voting spaces should be filled in with printing or borders, so that no elector would be tempted to mark outside a voting space.

"No man except a boss would oppose such an improvement of the ballot. No Legislature not controlled by a boss would refuse to make it. It adds no advantage for any individual. The only person who would suffer from it would be the bosses, and its benefits would be felt by every resident of the State."

A Wonderful Theory.

Glady—I don't like this egg anything. It's not good. Annie—Nonsense, dear. It was only laid yesterday. Glady—Well, then, it must have been laid by a bad hen.

Still in the Future.

Cashier (roughing)—Pardon me, I did not catch your last name. Ethel (blushing)—I haven't caught it yet myself.—Cleveland Leader.

Man's Ungovernableness.

is often greater as a woman's. But Thos. S. Austin, Mgr. of the "Republican," of Leavenworth, Kan., was not so comfortable when he refused to allow the doctors to operate on his wife, for female trouble. "Instead," he says, "we concluded to try Electric Bitters. My wife was then so sick, she could hardly leave her bed, and five (5) physicians had failed to relieve her. After taking Electric Bitters, she was perfectly cured, and can now perform all her household duties." Guaranteed by Short & Haynes, druggists, price 50c.

Notes About New Railroad.

(Hartford Herald.)

P. D. Grinnard and his surveying party have moved their camp to Dundee and will likely be there about a month or more. The time it is thought the survey for the new railroad will be about completed as far as Fordville.

Condemnation proceedings have been begun in the Ohio county court on the case of the right of way of the Madisonville, Hartford & Eastern Railroad. Those against whom action have been filed are: Dr. W. M. Warden and C. L. Warden, Centertown; R. T. Ross, C. T. Stratton and Capt. S. K. Cox, Hartford.

But few people are entirely free from indigestion at this season of the year. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is not only the best remedy to use because it digests what you eat but because it establishes the digestive apparatus to assimilate and transform all foods into tissue-building blood. Kodol relieves sour stomach, heart burn, belching, and all forms of indigestion. Sold by all Druggists.

Doomed the Colonel.

Emperor William I. of Germany was a strict disciplinarian. One day during the maneuvers of the army a cavalry regiment charged at a strongly entrenched and embattled village, of which the garden walls were lined with marksmen. "Look, look," exclaimed the Russian representative. "That regiment is lost." "No," was the emperor's calm reply, "this regiment will be the conqueror certainly." And, sure enough, at the close of the maneuvers he was placed on the retired list.

Two Kinds of Boys.

"My son got brain fever from studying too hard," said one mother to another, trying to impress a truth of intellectual pride.

"That's bad, but my boy broke his leg and two ribs in his first game of football," replied the other, with modest gratification.—Baltimore American.

Thinking of the Cook.

Jones—What makes you think Snubbs is absentminded? Freyer—We went in to an auction store yesterday. The auctioneer was shouting, "Going, going!" and Snubbs shouts, "Please don't go! I will give you $5 a month more and have a girl to help you with the washing!"

Senator Blackburn Confident: Will Abide by Caucus' Decision.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 15.—J. C. S. Blackburn, candidate to succeed himself as United States Senator, declared yesterday that his legislative supporters would go into a caucus with the Paynter forces, and expressed the utmost confidence that he would be the next Democratic nominee for Senator. He declared that he would abide by the result of the caucus, and if it should decide against him he would not carry the fight on to the floor of the Legislature.

"I have been an advocate of Democratic caucuses for forty years," he declared. "And I believe this Senatorial nomination should be decided by caucus."

"But if the caucus nominates Paynter, what will you do? he was asked, and answered in this way:

"Once I was the victim of a lot of business men who called a caucus, and you may be sure that I will never put myself in the position that they were in. I consider any man who backs a party caucus a traitor to that party."

Senator Blackburn declined to give the exact number of members of the Legislature that are pledged to him, but declared that there were a sufficient number to insure his nomination and election. It will require fifty-three to nominate in the caucus and seventy to elect, all the Senators and Representatives voting.

Men Past Sixty in Danger.

More than half of mankind over sixty years of age suffer from kidney and bladder disorders, usually declared by the presence of blood in the urine, and of prostatic gland. This is both painful and dangerous, and Foley's Kidney Cure should be taken at the first sign of danger, as it corrects irregularities and has cured many old men of this disease. Mr. Rodgers, Burnett, Rock Port, Mo., writes: "I suffered with enlarged prostate gland and kidney trouble for years and after taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure I feel better than I have for twenty years, although I am now 61 years old." Studying Nature.

The thing to aim at in studying the beauties of nature, as is the case with all artistic pleasures, is the perception of quality, or of small effects. Many of the people who believe themselves to have an appreciation of natural scenery cannot appreciate it except on a large scale. They can see the grandeur of a mountain range, but they cannot see the beauty of a single flower, or the grace of a single bird. They are like the man who can see the grandeur of a mountain range, but cannot see the beauty of a single flower, or the grace of a single bird.

Curious Almanac.

The most curious almanac in England is that of a hospital at Chichester. There, eight old ladies live actually in the church, which is a fine old building dating from 1680. It was originally a monastery, but when Queen Elizabeth came to visit there she turned it into an almshouse to endure as long as alms-houses exist. The old ladies have to be seen at a hospital at Chichester. There, eight old ladies live actually in the church, which is a fine old building dating from 1680. It was originally a monastery, but when Queen Elizabeth came to visit there she turned it into an almshouse to endure as long as alms-houses exist.

Too Serious.

While a great many persons probably take themselves too seriously, even talking an altogether exaggerated opinion of their ability and worth, not many are so serious as the English poet Coleridge met at Frankfurt. He always took off his hat when he entered a room, and he was so serious that he would not even smile at his friends. He was so serious that he would not even smile at his friends.

Boarding a Hansom.

Have you ever noticed the right way to get into a hansom when two people are riding? Few persons know what to do. In nine cases out of ten the one who enters first seats himself on the off side. But this is wrong. If, on getting in first, you take the near seat, your companion can then enter in ease and comfort, which otherwise he could not.

To Waterproof Canvas.

Scientific American gives this recipe for waterproofing for canvas: Soft soap dissolved in hot water and a solution of iron sulphate added. The sulphuric acid combines with the potash of the soap and the iron oxide is precipitated. The canvas is then dipped in the solution. This is washed and dried and mixed with linseed oil.

Masculine.

Mrs. Hix—Mrs. Lane strikes me as being entirely too masculine for a woman. Mrs. Lane—Yes, indeed. Why, every time she has a headache or a pain she makes as much fuss about it as a man would.

Discernion.

First Lawyer—It seems to me you let that last witness down pretty easily in your cross-examination. Second Lawyer—I had to. He is my tailor, and I owe him a big bill.

When a man says, "Of course it's no business of mine," it is a sure sign that he is going to do the best he can to make it his business.

Diet and Digestion.
Abstention in diet is very conducive to a good digestion. It is preferable to be a little underfed than at all overfed. Hence we come to one of the first causes of indigestion in the adult too large a quantity of food. After an ordinary meal the food should all have left the stomach by the end of six or seven hours. If owing to an excessive quantity the stomach cannot deal with the amount some food remains in the stomach and ferments. This creates discomfort, pain, wind, nausea, and perhaps vomiting, by means of which the abused stomach gets rid of its burden. If the sufferer is not thus fortunate, the best thing he can do is to drink a large tubful of lukewarm water, which will probably induce vomiting, and so wash out the stomach. Half a teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda added to the fluid will cause still more relief. During the next twenty-four hours the lightest diet, such as a little tea and dried toast, some boiled rice, a little arrowroot or corn flour, should be taken.

Chotchery at the Gymkhana.

In "Modern India" the author, W. H. Murray Curtis, records his meeting with the world gymkhana and everybody stops there on an afternoon drive to have chotchery, which is the local term for afternoon tea and for early morning coffee.

Winding Your Watch.

The old superstitions belief that you will change your luck if you stop winding your watch at night and wind it in the morning may have some slight basis in fact, according to a jeweler, who says that the morning is the proper time to wind a watch. This is not only because the hour of rising is for the average man much more regular than that for retiring, but even the so-called "lucky" order of men are apt to relax and prone to carelessness at bedtime, when more or less worn by the wear and tear of the day. In this condition of mind it is not to be wondered at that a man who is to be doing his work in the morning may have some slight basis in fact, according to a jeweler, who says that the morning is the proper time to wind a watch.

Gov. Hanly Steps Gambling.

A special to the Indianapolis News from West Baden, Ind., says that on December 10 the Indiana Governor Carlo will pass out of existence, for on that day the Casino at West Baden and the Casino at French Lick will close their doors, and two of the greatest gambling houses in the West will retire from business, and not only will the games at these two famous health resorts stop, but gambling, for the first time in so many years that people around here cannot remember back, will come to an end in "the valley." Ed Ballard, the gamest sportsman, and one of the most expert gamblers in the country, has been whipped out of the game.

"I don't know anything to say about it except that Gov. Hanly said he would stop gambling at French Lick and West Baden, and I know the Governor has made good," and Ballard went on talking to a friend with whom he was conversing at the time he was interrupted by the News correspondent.

A liquid cold cure and the only Cough Syrup which moves the bowels—was all out of the system—Kendall's Laxative Honey and Tar. Clears the head and throat and makes weak lungs strong. Best for Croup, Whooping Cough, etc. Children love it. Sold by all druggists.

Resented Talk Against Brother.

Edith Adams, wife of Geo. Adams, principal of the colored public school, and Sissie Roberts, of color, were presented in Judge Willis' court Thursday afternoon, as the result of an action in which they engaged, and a subsequent fight, which had only a beginning as it was stopped at the start by Adams himself. His wife, it seems, was accused by the other woman of conveying another person information detrimental to the character of her brother one Frank Roberts. Roberts' sister resented the alleged act and then the trouble started.

Judge Willis fined the Roberts woman $3.30.

Every ounce of food you eat that fails to digest does a pound of harm to the entire meal into poison. This not only deprives the blood of the necessary tissue-building material, but it poisons it. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is a perfect digestant. It digests the food regardless of the condition of the stomach. It allows that organ to rest and get on again. Relieves Belching, Heart Burn, Sour Stomach, Indigestion, Palpitation of the Heart, etc. Sold by all Druggists.

A Liberal Education.

Professor Huxley held this opinion as to what constitutes a liberal education.

The man has a liberal education who has been so trained in youth that his body is the ready servant of his will and does with ease and pleasure all the work that his mechanism is capable of, whose intellect is a clear, cold, logical engine, with all its parts of equal strength and in smooth working order, ready like the steam engine, to be turned to any kind of work and spin the gossamers as well as forge the anchors of the mind; whose mind is stored with a knowledge of the great and fundamental truths of nature and of the laws of her operations; one who, no stunted ascetic, is full of life and fire, but whose passions are trained to come to heel by a vigorous will, the servant of a tender conscience; who has learned to love all beauty, whether of nature or of art, to hate all violence and to respect others as himself. Such a one, and no other, has had a liberal education.

What Passed Him.

Wife—I mended the hole in your trousers pocket last night after he had gone to bed. John dear. Now, am not I a thoughtful little wife? Husband (dubiously)—Well—er—yes, you are thoughtful enough, my dear, but how the mischief did you discover that there was a hole in my pocket?

Wise Willie.

"You should be like the chickens, Willie. Just see how early they wake up in the morning."

"Oh, well, I come waking up early, too, but I'm stood up all night."

Her Vacation.

Sue—Yes, she means to reform him. He—but she is trying to obtain a divorce now. Sue—Well, I suppose she wants to reform another man now.

THE BEST FRIENDS OF PE-RU-NA ARE THE MOTHERS AND CHILDREN

When Sickness Comes to the Little Ones
It is the Mother Who Chiefly Suffers.

She suffers even more than the child who happens to be sick.
Her sympathy is deeper than that of any other member of the family.
The mothers look forward with dread to the torrid heat of summer, thinking of their children and the many liabilities to disease that are before them.
Spring and summer are sure to bring ailments, especially among the little folks.

It does not take a mother very long to discover that Peru-na is the best friend she has in times of illness among the children.

The doctors may come and go with their different theories and constant change of remedies.

The doctor of years ago gave entirely different remedies than he does today. Each year finds some change in his prescriptions and in the drugs he relies upon.

A Multitude of Mothers
Have discovered that Peru-na is the stand-by, and that in all the ailments of spring and summer to which the children are subjected, Peru-na is the remedy that will most quickly relieve.

Whether it is spring fever or stomach derangement, whether it is indigestion or bowel disease, a catarrhal congestion of the mucous surfaces is the cause.

Peru-na quickly relieves this condition of the mucous membranes. Its operation is prompt, the children do not dislike to take the medicine, it has no deleterious effects in any part of the body. It simply removes the cause of the disagreeable symptoms and restores the health.

Peru-na is not a physic. Peru-na is not a nerve or a narcotic. Peru-na does not produce any drug habit, however long it may be taken. Peru-na is not a stimulant.

Peru-na is a specific remedy for all catarrhal ailments of winter and summer, acute or chronic.

The mothers all over the United States are the best friends that Peru-na has.

The Mothers Hold Peru-na in High Esteem.
Not only because it has cured them of their various ailments, but because it always restores the children from the throes and grasp of catarrhal diseases.

We have in our files hundreds of testimonials from mothers whose children have been cured by Peru-na. However, the large majority of mothers who use Peru-na, we never hear from.

But we do hear from a great number of mothers who are so overjoyed at some special good they have received from Peru-na that they cannot restrain their enthusiasm. They are anxious to share these benefits with other mothers.

The Benefit Which the Children of the United States Have Received From Peru-na Can Never Be Put Into Words.

The chronic ailments that have prevented the suffering it has mitigated, will never be fully repeated.

But at least this much can be said that the coming generation owes a great debt to Peru-na, for it is in the tender years of youth that slight ailments are liable to develop into lasting diseases, thus blighting the whole career of the individual.

The mothers who are bringing up their children today to believe in Peru-na are doing a great work for humanity. These children brought up to believe in Peru-na from the start, will, when they become heads of families themselves, use Peru-na with unquestioning faith.

Peru-na Protects the Entire Household.

As soon as the value of Peru-na is appreciated by every household, both as a preventive and cure, tens of thousands of lives will be saved, and hundreds of thousands of chronic, lingering cases of catarrh will be prevented.

Mrs. Theresa Rooke, 308 N. Ashland Ave., Chicago, Ill., Treasurer Ladies of the Macabees, writes:

"In our home Peru-na is the only medicine we have. Grandmother, mother, father and child, all have used Peru-na. It is our great remedy for catarrh of the stomach and head, colds, and female complaints of which it has cured me. We find it of great value when my husband becomes worn out or catches cold. A couple of doses cure him."

"If the baby has colic, or any stomach disorders, a dose or two cures her. I consider Peru-na finer than any doctor's medicine that I have ever tried, and I know that as long as we have it in the house, we will all be able to keep in good health."—Theresa Rooke.

No Doctor Required.
Mr. Edward Otto, 927 De Soto street, St. Paul, Minn., writes:

"I cannot say enough for Peru-na. It has done great work in my family, especially for my eldest boy. We had doctor with three or four different doctors and they did not seem to do him any good. We gave up hopes of cure, and so did they, but we pulled him through on Peru-na."

"We had several doctors and they said they could do no more for him, so we tried Peru-na as a last resort, and that did the work. Since then we keep it in the house all the time, and no doctor is required."—Edward Otto.

Mrs. D. H. Farmer, New Martinsville, W. Va., writes:

"Our little son, Harry, is well and healthy now and we think if we do as you directed us, he will keep his health and grow strong."

"We know that our little son's life was saved by your wonderful medicine, Peru-na, and we shall always praise Peru-na and use it in our family when needed."

"Should we have any more catarrhal trouble in our family, we shall always write to you for treatment."—G. H. Farmer.

Mr. Howard Andrew Sterner, Maddy Creek, Pa., writes:

"I have Peru-na in my house all the time and won't be without it. It is good for children when they take a cold or croup. It cured my baby boy of croup."

"I have introduced Peru-na into six families since I received your last letter, and four have seen relief already."—Howard Andrew Sterner.

Peru-na Should Be Kept in Every Household

Where There Are Little Children.

Peru-na should be kept in the home all the time. Don't wait until the child is sick, then send to a drug store. But have Peru-na on hand—accept no substitute.

Children are especially liable to some catarrh. Indeed, most of the affections of childhood are catarrh.

All forms of sore throat, quinsy, croup, hoarseness, laryngitis, etc., are but different phases of catarrh.

Mrs. Amelia Saller, Menasha, Wis., writes:

"I have used Peru-na for a number of years. It cured me of chronic catarrh which I suffered with from infancy. When my three children were born they all had catarrh, but I have given them Peru-na and find it very effective in ridding them of this horrible trouble. I find that it is also good to give them as a tonic and a preventative of colds and colic."

"In fact, I consider it a household blessing. I would not know how to raise my children without it. I am pleased to give it my recommendation."—Amelia Saller.

No town on the Henderson Route has a brighter future than Ekron. The new bank has given new life to the business interests and is quite an uplift to the general prosperity of the town and surrounding community.

Our people were never more enthused over their prospects.

The Ladies Aid of the Baptist church are a small band of energetic workers, never missing an opportunity to make a few dollars for the aid of their work. They have already made over $300, which is quite a good sum, considering their opportunities for making money.

The First State Bank will build a banking house and hall 22 by 50 feet, two-story brick. Ground was broken Monday. This bank is doing a nice business. Its deposits are growing every day. A. C. Crouch, the cashier, is giving general satisfaction. He and his wife are quite an addition to our society.

Mrs. Wickliffe DeHaven charmingly entertained Monday afternoon, in honor of Mrs. Chas. Cottrell, who leaves today for Pensacola, Fla., after having spent several weeks with Mrs. G. W. Short. The feature of the Entertainment was the game Forty-two. Mrs. DeHaven kept tally and the tally cards were hand made. Sixteen guests were present and the hostess was assisted in receiving by her sister, Miss Mamie DeHaven.

The Presbyterians have placed a street lamp in front of their church.
